CRAWFORD, R. The immigrant in St. Louis. A survey. Studies in social economics, vol. I, no. 2. (St. Louis: Missouri School of Social Economy. 1916. Pp. 108. 50c.)

An excellent example of a local monograph, and of the kind of "survey work" which should be undertaken in all of our larger American cities. Miss Crawford takes up in successive chapters the history of immigration to St. Louis, the housing of the immigrant in St. Louis, his occupation, education, naturalization, and relation to the city's institutions and its life generally. The final chapters are devoted to the work of religious and philanthropic agencies dealing with the immigrant in St. Louis. The monograph is clearly and interestingly written. Appended to it, and increasing its value, is a list of practical suggestions regarding the problems of which the monograph treats, forming a social program for St. Louis in her future dealing with the immigrant.
